

Good things eventually come to those who wait here at North Kensington as the works to refurbish Morley College have finally kicked off...cheers!

After an age of design workshops, discussions, engagement meetings, to and fro with the planning department, we are here actually BUILDING STUFF! We're looking forward to realising the hard work that so many people have put in over the past few years working towards this point. With teams from Morley, LocatEd, and the DfE alongside our design team of excellent architects and engineers, we're set to make this place spectacular again.

It's been a fairly obvious start to everyone who comes to the college regularly. After settling in with our welfare cabins our scaffold popped up quicker than you can say 'Golborne Road'!

We were able to mark the memorial of the Grenfell Tragedy on 14th June with a monoflex adorned with 72 green hearts; one dedicated to each of the victims. We will never forget.

We've had to relocate the beautiful plants from the Grenfell Garden temporarily but they will be well looked after until they can return when the scheme is in its finishing stages.

We've brought a hoist to site assisting all those materials onto the roof which is the first stage of actual works. Although it won't be seen by many, this is a key part of the project as it will ensure the rain, which has crept into the building gradually over the past will be dried out and kept out — good riddance! No more damp days for the third floor of this old building...
